

Aboriginal By Alexia

Food

The aboriginals would go hunting for kangaroos, fish and grubs and turtles they would also go hunting for berries nuts and emu

Art

Aboriginals do dot painting they would also use rocks to paint sometimes The aboriginals paintings we're quite colourful sometimes They used mud to paint sometimes The Aboriginals would use something called Oproh aboriginals would sell their paintings for money aboriginals most common paintings were dot paintings and striped paintings Aboriginals use different symbols to communicate traditional aboriginal paintings always have a story because the aboriginal people do not have a written language The only way they could tell their stories was through Paintings and songs paints were made from ochre these stone pigments were mixed with emu fats and kangaroo oils to make a liquid paint.

Clothes

The Aboriginals would often use bark , grass and leaves to cover their bodies. The men would wear a riji and this was an item of clothing that went around their waist. It was tied together by grass and leaves. In cooler parts of Australia the Aboriginal people would wear possum cloaks. These were made by combining several possum skins together. In the northern parts of Australia the Aboriginal people rarely wore clothes and usually covered their body's with paintings. Most of their clothing consisted of the animal skins. The skins were usually rubbed with fat and this provided extra warmth during the colder nights. Animal skins were also used as blankets and bedding.

Transport

The main form of transport amongst traditional indigenous people was walking. Because the indigenous lifestyle was nomadic people had to do a lot of walking to get from place to place. Those indigenous Groups that live near the Coast or large bodies of water would often travel in canoes that they had made from hollowed out trees trunks. These canoes were very helpful in fishing activities as well as for travelling around.

Music

Australian indigenous music includes the music of indigenous Australians and Torres strait Islanders they are called indigenous. performance of Aboriginal song and dance in the Australian national maritime museum in Sydney with traditional instrument the didgeridoo