

Aboriginal culture By Aviana

Art

Aboriginal art is one of the oldest surviving art forms still practiced today. Paints were made from ochre also these stone pigments were mixed with emu fat and kangaroo oils to liquid paint.

The oldest paintings
Were painted

thousands of years ago in caves. They made their paint by crushing up flowers. Traditional Aboriginal paintings always have a story because the aboriginal people do not have a written language

Food

To touch the animals they would use boomerangs throwing sticks and spears.

Aboriginal People had a healthy diet. They knew how to find foods that were full of vitamins and minerals. The Aboriginal people ate different foods depending on where they live in Australia. Aboriginal People went fishing for Fish and turtles. Once the food was caught the Aboriginals would usually cook the meat on fire. There were various ways of preparing food they also ate honey ants.

Kangaroo

Music

The aboriginal people made their own instruments out of long logs that are hollow. The Australian aboriginals have had no written language and rely on oral methods and music to pass on their knowledge. Music is used throughout an Aboriginal life to teach what must be known about their culture about their place in it and about the World of nature. A didgeridoo is a type of musical instrument also it is one of the oldest instruments to date. It consists of a long tube and it is traditionally made of eucalyptus. Today, didgeridoos are most commonly made from PVC piping.

Clothing

In the northern parts of Australia the aboriginal people rarely wore Close and usually covered their bodies with paintings. The Aboriginal people would often use the grass and leaves to cover their bodies. The men would wear a riji that goes around their hips. Aboriginal people make their own clothes out of leather and other materials too. The leather they used was called animals skin. In the cooler parts of Australia Aboriginal people that would wearpossum cloaks.

Shelter

Most of Australia has very hot climate and people often slept out in the open. To keep themselves warm at night they would sleep close to fires. In the wet and cold conditions, closed dome-shaped shelters were made. The Aboriginal people made rock caves to live in. The Aboriginal people do not have a house like us the Aboriginal people had to build their homes some Aboriginal people live in rock cave and much more. In the northern areas of Australia, the shelters were often larger in size. It wasn't easy to build a home they had to hunt and hunt for many days to get different material. Some homes were very big but others were very tiny but some people like it like that.

Transport

The main form transport amongst traditional Indigenous people was walking. They use left over wood pieces and made a sled.

Aboriginal people like to walk or go on home-made sled. Aboriginal people used to make everything for use.

They use slides to get to places quicker and faster so they can get their food and dinner.

They use the sleds also for boats to get fish and turtles for food.