

Aboriginal invention

The Canoe

The canoe
What is it?

The canoe is an aboriginal invention that you would paddle with your hands or you would get little bark sticks while you would be kneeling or sitting. The canoe was made by the indigenous Canadians.

The canoe
What is it made from?
The canoe is made from stringy bark or mount ash or red gum bark. The pedals are from a piece of bark or you can just use your hands.

The tree it's made from

The canoe

How was it made?

The canoe was made by getting bark from a tree then it was sealed and was made watertight, then it was moulded into the canoe structure and made into a water craft.

The canoe
What was it made for?

The canoes was made for general
transport, fishing
and for collecting
bird eggs.

The canoe
What do people use today for the same purpose?

People can use a boat
for the same purpose or they could use a raft or plastic canoe.

The canoe

Was it used by all aboriginal people in different language groups? Most of the language groups used the canoe but not all of the language groups
used the canoe.

The end!

