

Nulla Nulla

By Indi

What is it?

A nulla nulla is a club made hardwood. It was used by aboriginal people as a weapon. It is pronounced (nalla nalla).

What is it made from?

- A nulla nulla / aboriginal club it is made with from hardwood it was also made from black timber. Black timber is very common in housing and is a dark coloured wood it can be the only method of insulation (insulation is a way to keep you cool in summer and warm in winter.)

How is it made?

- The Nula Nula was made by carving black timber. Then you would make it a head with stone. It would be about a metre in length in the end.

What is it used for?

- The Nulla Nulla was used as a weapon. This weapon was used for throwing or striking when hunting animals. The animals included were kangaroo, emu, lizards, snakes and possums.

What do people today use for the same purpose!

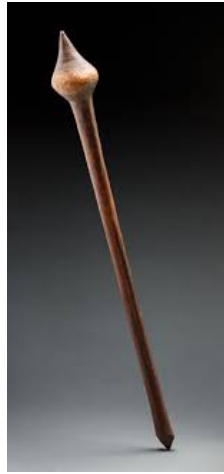

- These days we use guns and clubs for hunting. We also use things like dart guns, (A dart gun is a non killing air gun.) bow and arrow and plenty of other weapons. Though, we used clubs back in the medieval times and the nulla nulla is type of club.

Used in the medieval times

Used by aboriginal people

Was it used by all Aboriginal people in different language groups?

All the aboriginal tribes used the Nulla Nulla they just made the different styles.
